Description

German pair of singing birds in a brass cage by Karl Griesbaum. A fairly complicated arrangement of bellows in the movement enables the birds to sing to each other, one answering the others call. They both move their beaks and tails in time to their singing and the red birds also turns its head. The sound is pure with no mechanical sounds at all. Apparently this singing bird was found in a deceased estate and it was wrapped and found in the attic and clearly never used. The owners children had no idea it existed. We have sold many of these singing birds over the years and we believe that this is the best one we've ever found.. The birdsong is loud, clear and sweet and the birds themselves are in very good condition with their colours still bright and no loss of feathers. We can send a little video of them singing on request. We can deliver free of charge in UK mainland and can calculate the cost of International delivery Payment by bank transfer or PayPal.
