This is a fine quality antique English Georgian mahogany style stool, ideal as a dressing or piano stool, constructed during the late Victorian period, circa 1890, which has been newly upholstered to a professional standard, in excellent condition. The mahogany stool has been newly upholstered in top quality taupe colour boucle material, finished with a hessian underside. The drop-in seat is firm, but very comfortable to sit on. The seat sits within a moulded mahogany frame, raised on block moulded legs, united by a "H" stretcher for additional strength. Ideal for use as a bedroom dressing stool, piano or foot stool, in the living room. Condition Report: This is a fine quality antique English Georgian mahogany style stool, ideal as a dressing o...
