Description

An Art Deco crystal vase dated between 1932 and 1937 created by Thomas Webb & Sons, exclusively for the Rembrandt Guild and was designed by Tom Pitchford and then hand blown by head glassblower Frank Bridgens who undertook all of the Rembrandt Guilds commissions. The Rembrandt Guild was a high end gallery that sold pieces of exceptional quality in Paradise Street Birmingham. The vase is signed to the base, and stands 20cm tall and 17cm wide. The design is pure art deco at its best, and the elegant mitre cuts in the crystal really catch and refract the light giving it a luminous quality. It really reminds me of the lenses in a lighthouse! The vase is in good condition with no chips or cracks, but does have the gentle surface wear to be expected of a piece of this age. There are surface scuffs to the base where it has sat whilst on display, which I have reflected in the price. Please examine the photographs to ensure that this is something that you'd be happy with, but hopefully as the pictures show, the vase displays beautifully. Please do not hesitate to get in touch if I can provide any further information or photographs. I offer free delivery throughout the UK, and ...
