Description

This antique porcelain figurine, titled "Village Clerk," is a product of Ackermann & Fritze Volkstedt and dates back to the early 20th century. It portrays a village scene where a woman seeks the assistance of an official or clerk to help with paperwork. The woman has a basket of fruit at her feet, likely intended as payment for the clerk's services. The group figurine is crafted in the finest traditions of the Dresden firm Ackermann & Fritze. The artisans demonstrated their traditional craftsmanship, which is evident in the details of the faces, clothing, and the basket of vegetables. A wonderfully chosen color palette enhances the figurine's charm. Porzellanfabrik Ackermann & Fritze was established in Rudolstadt-Volkstedt in 1908 and produced premium elite porcelain. By 1949, it employed 30 individuals. It operated as VEB Kunst- und Zierporzellanwerke Rudolstadt-Volkstedt from 1951 to 1959. The figurine measures 22.5 cm in height, 21 cm in width, 11 cm in depth, and weighs 1276 grams. The condition of the figurine is generally excellent, despite a couple of minor defects: the tip of the feather in the official's hand is broken off, and there is a crack on the rema...
