Description

A huge heavy English Georgian antique solid sterling silver serving ladle. It is hallmarked for London 1825 with the maker's marks being that of Thomas Dicks, the small mark will be a journeyman's mark, silversmiths who travelled around looking for work or brought in during busy times. It has been superbly made to what is termed fiddle pattern and the terminal has been engraved with the initials EMO. It is in superb condition being free from dings splits and repairs, a very faint bowl mark. It measures approx. 12.75 inches (32cm) long by 4.25 inches (10.5cm) wide and weighs a very impressive 256 grams. A top quality piece.
