Description

A superb antique glass scent bottle with Gold Top dating from the late 19th century. The bottle is excellent quality with a hobnail cut design and a threaded screw top with its original ground glass stopper. The top is not hallmarked but has been tested as gold. The small stones around the top are believed to be Turquoise. It is in very good condition for its age. There are a couple of small nibbles on the bottom foot (see photo) but no cracks or major damages to the glass and the top is in good condition. It has been cleaned and gently polished and it displays very well. The best description comes from the photographs so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask.
