Description

This late 19th-century impressionistic German oil painting depicts an autumnal day on the banks of the Isar River in Munich, Germany. Under a spirited cloud-filled sky, the river winds through rugged scenery. The water captured in the foreground with a haze of tints and tones. Beyond, a splash of white catches the eye, while a dark copse on the left guides us to a distant horizon. The work is signed 'Hammerschmidt' but it's tricky to attribute to any well-known hand. It's quite early for this style and they almost certainly trained at the Academy of Fine Arts in Munich. Signed/dated lower right and held within a later frame. Medium: Oil on canvas Overall size: 26" x 22½" / 66cm x 57cm Year of creation: 1888 Labels & Inscriptions: 'Hammerschmidt' inscribed on the reverse. Condition: Artwork presents well. Fine craquelure but the paint is stable. Frame with some light wear.
