Description

A lovely antique inlaid mahogany display cabinet. We date this cabinet to the very early 20th century. The cabinet sits on six downward tapered legs and has a lower shelf area. There is an attractive gallery to the rear with a lovely inlaid fan design. The front of the cabinet is of a three panel design with each panel being a side hinged door. The centre door being a glazed door and the two outer doors being bowed with a lovely inlaid design to the centre. All three doors are provided with working locks (key supplied). The interior of the central cupboard is fitted with two fixed wooden shelves, the shelves and sides are lined in velvet. Each outer cupboard is fitted with two wooden bow front shelves. The cabinet has an overall height of 66" (169cm) with the gallery, a top surface height of 55.5" (141cm), a width of 55" (140cm) and a depth of 17.5" (44cm). This lovely mahogany cabinet remains in very good solid condition with only very minor surface markings commensurate with age and usage. There is some minor wear to some edges and some darker marks to the top surface from past use. The fabric has some ring marks where items have sat in the past. This remains a ...
