Description

A beautiful Edwardian antique chandelier of substantial size in the Empire style with three tiers of graduating crystal glass icicle droplets finished with faceted glass sphere underneath. The chandelier has a very good quality decorative brass frame with six pierced anthemion motifs and hangs on three chains. When illuminated the crystal glass glistens. The brass has been cleaned and lacquered and the light has been rewired and is in full working order. The chandelier is attributed to Osler. Thomas Osler established the business 1807 in Birmingham where it first began manufacturing small glass trinkets. A year later it began making glass icicle droplets and from then on chandeliers where been produced to the highest of standards. In 1847 Osler made a pair of candelabras from Egypt's ruler and in 1851 he was commissioned to make the Crystal Palace Fountain for The Great Exhibition. Height - 61 cm (24 inches) Width - 38 cm (15 inches) Depth - 38 cm (15 inches) Circa - 1910
