Description

Flemish oak carved settle in good condition with beautiful carvings, the panel with the sword and the fleurs-de-lis is a variation on the arms of Joan of Arc, Joan's brothers were ennobled by the French King after her death. Quite a few of their descendants (in the female line) claimed that the patent extended to their families too. For that reason there are quite a few families that use this emblem. The seat has gargoyles for arm rests and the seat has a lift up lid for storage.
