Description

Royal Dux porcelain is a type of porcelain that has been produced in Duchcov, Czech Republic since 1853. The company was founded by Eduard Eichler, who was inspired by the porcelain factories of Meissen and Dresden. The name of the company comes from the Latin word "Duke", the title of Eichler's father-in-law. At the beginning of its activity the company produced simple white tableware, but soon began to experiment with colour and decoration. In the 1870s Royal Dux began to produce figurines, and by the beginning of the XX century they became the main focus of the company. Today, Royal Dux statuettes are a collector's item, and the company continues its activity, producing both porcelain tableware and statuettes. Speaking of porcelain, Czechoslovakia is a country with a rich history. For many centuries this country has been famous for its high quality and beautiful porcelain. The history of Czechoslovak porcelain dates back to the early 18th century, when the first porcelain factory was founded in the town of Ceske Budejovice. At the time, porcelain was a very new and innovative material, and the Czechoslovaks quickly adopted it. Over the next few decades, several more po...
