Description

A solid and attractive 19th century antique mahogany extendable dining table. The antique dining table comes apart in three sections, creating two useful tables when separated. The mahogany dining table has a rectangular shaped detachable part to the centre, with demi lune tables to both ends. The antique dining table is raised on twin pedestals, with turned columns, splayed legs with brass paw feet and castors. Comfortably sits up to eight. A rather impressive extendable dining table, full of character and charm. Perfectly matched with our range of mahogany dining chairs (M-4675 pictured). Item Ref; M-4825 . DIMENSIONS: Demi Lune: Height - 72.5cm / Depth - 81.5cm / Width - 107cm Dining Table: Height - 72.5cm / Width - 162.5cm / Depth - 107cm / Extended Width - 202.5cm . CONDITION REPORT: In good antique condition throughout with some signs of age. There is surface wear in places including age-related marks, scratches and fading to the top (pictured), further marks to the base. There is also age-related patina to the feet and castors (pictured), however this doesn't affect the overall integrity of the product. The antique mahogany extendable dining table remains structu...
