Description

We are delighted to offer this fabulous Victorian solid silver cigar/cheroot case made by Nathaniel Mills, Birmingham 1853. Bearing the hallmarks of Nathaniel Mills, unsurprisingly, this case is of the utmost intricacy and exemplary of the finest Victorian box craftsmanship. Mills' works often include fine engravings and detailed acanthus motifs and this case is no exception with a profusely hand-engraved exterior of volute acanthus scrolls. Furthermore, one side of the cartouche features a hand-engraved hunting scene and the other side with a blank cartouche. What is particularly impressive is that this decoration has all been done by hand, without a single slip and one can imagine the meticulous craftsmanship and skill required to decorate such a challenging curved surface. This case features a push button at the side with a closing/locking mechanism to ensure any content held within will not fall out. The case will be able to hold approximately three cigars of a petit-corona size (or smaller) with ease. Additionally, with some creative uses, it could also be used to hold some small sweets or medicine. Whether be it a wonderful collectable object of ve...
