Description

A luminous, scintillating wide landscape depicting a "mas" in the South of France, with the Alpilles mountain range in the background. Painted with the short brushstrokes typical for neo-impressionism, the painting is almost pointillist in style. Unsigned, the mysterious work has the wonderfully pure and high octane colours which were a trademark of the neo impressionists such as Paul Signac, Georges Seurat and Edouard Fer. An oil on canvas dating from circa 1920, the painting was restored and stretched on to new stretcher bars. Light but stable craquelure is perceptible. Measuring 38 x 55 cm, the overall framed size in a quality frame is 51 x 68 cm.
