Description

Signed drawing by the well catalogued French artist Louis Clement Faller (French School - 1819 - 1901). The drawing is signed by the artist and mounted in a simple gilt frame and mount and is under glass. Louis Clement Faller was born in Habsheim, near Mulhouse in 1819. He was a French painter, draftsman and lithographer and was a student of Paul Delaroche then of Eugène Delacroix. Faller spent some time in the United States from 1851 to 1860 where he opened a painting studio in New York and was a founder of the American Barbizon School. He then moved back in France to the Chevreuse Valley in 1863. Upon his arrival in New York, Faller exhibited at the National Academy of Design. In 1854, Faller opened a school of painting. Whilst in New York, Faller and a group of American landscapers founded the American Barbizon School. He became the leader of a Franco-American pictorial movement, which will be the driving force behind the School of American Landscaping until the end of the 19th century. He was also a theoretician of the outdoor school, landscapes full of life, vibrating surrounding and changing lights, until they become impressions. The death of his father...
