Description

A lovely Edwardian mother of pearl and abalone chequered trinket box, c.1910. The whole box is covered in mother of pearl and abalone squares. The lid is opened via a push button mechanism which works perfectly. The hinged lid opens to reveal a pink sink lined interior. The whole is raised upon four ball feet. There is some light fraying to the sink lining and a very small chip to the back near the right hinge (please see photographs). Generally the box remains in a very good attractive condition throughout.
