Description

Slide Lid Workbox - Inlaid Top - c1900 A late Victorian ladies mahogany workbox with sliding lid and fitted interior. The workbox is an attractive item which is constructed from mahogany and benefits from attractive Yew inlay to the twin sliding lids. This stylish and well kept item consists of an upper box with partially exposed fabric in soft peach, riding above fine tapering square section legs terminating in spade feet. A fitted interior allows for storage and separation of smaller items. There is an original 1940 T. Mephram & Sons sticker to the underside showing that the piece once lived in the South East London area. A wonderful piece of furniture that is in good order throughout. We mention for the sake of accuracy that there is a small ink mark on the fabric internally under one of the storage compartments which is visible under close inspection.
