Description

George V mahogany twin pillar dining table. This solid mahogany twin pillar dining table was made at the start of the 20th century using good mahogany. The table has square ends, rounded corners, and a further extension leaf. The extra leaf is of a large size that makes the table a very good dining size providing a good 10-seater or more. A pair of mahogany turned gun barrel columns with the tripod legs support the table. Each leg is fitted with the wonderful cast brass square toes with the castors under. The table can be used with no leaves or using just one. You will own a very versatile dining table that gives you plenty of dining options as you entertain your family and friends. The advantage of not having a leg to each corner enables you to entertain more people around it. Imagine how wonderful this dining table will look in your dining area as you entertain your family and friends.
