Description

This charming 19th-century drawing by British artist Edmond Albert Joseph Tyrel de Poix (1840-1916) depicts a mother and child standing by a mill pond before a rustic watermill. De Poix was a gentleman artist descended from French nobility. Born in Worcester, he tended to paint the local environs and one can imagine him sketching outdoors while exploring the ample countryside. For a number of years he exhibited at the wonderfully named 'Woodpecker Sketch Club', which later became the Worcester City and County Fine Arts Association. Here, he's added a further dimension by heightening the figures in white, which draws the eye. Beyond them, the view extends for miles, culminating in misty hills and a church spire. Glazed and framed. Medium: Pencil on paper Overall size: 22½" x 19" / 57cm x 48cm Year of creation: c. 1870 Provenance: Private collection, England. Condition: Artwork presents well. Minor age-related marks. Edmond Albert Joseph Edouard Marie Tyrel de Poix was an accomplished British landscape painter and draughtsman. He was born in Worcester and his family descended from French nobility. His works were shown primarily at local exhibitions, including at the Wo...
