Description

Edwardian mahogany dressing table This Edwardian mahogany dressing table was made circa 1910. Made in the Georgian style, this very attractive dressing table is fitted 3 drawers. To each side of the knee hole there is a box drawer and above the knee hole is a wider drawer. All with fine cross-banding and the original brass swing handles. Above the knee hole there is the apron with some fine leaf carving. The dressing table stands on elegant cabriole legs finishing with claw and ball feet. This fine mahogany table can be used for many other uses as its size and proportion allows it to be used as a desk or server.
