Description

An attractive brass bound domed burr walnut writing slope that dates to around 1840 In great original condition, in a medium brown waxed finish with a strong burr configuration, brass banding and corners and a coromandel and ebony interior. With an antique black, with gold tooling replacement leather and a set of brass screw top inkwells. It has a circular brass cartouche and escutcheon with brass outer rings on both. Has a Bramar lock with its original key and a lock on one of the writing boards also with a working key. A divider next to the left inkwell can be raised which releases a sprung panel to reveal two secret drawers. It measures 16 inches wide, 10 inches deep and 7 inches high. A fine quality slope which would make a nice present for a loved one that would grace a period or contemporary home.
