Description

A fine and attractive example of an ebonised bracket clock with its original matching wall bracket. Made by the eminent maker J Thwaites of London and retailed by James Lindley of London. The movement, dial and case are all numbered 2920, which dates the clock to 1802 (Thwaites manufacturing records). It is well documented from the Thwaites records that they supplied many clocks to high quality clockmakers and retailers during the Georgian period. The brass bound single pad top break arch ebonised oak case surmounted with a brass carrying handle, beneath the brass bound, glazed opening door with the original lock. The case sides with silk lined cast brass fishscale frets and the rear opening glazed door with the original lock. Standing on a moulded plinth and the original brass ogee feet. The matching high quality brass bound ebonised wall bracket, with slide out drawer for the winding key. The painted white dial signed Jas Lindley, London to the dial centre, with strike silent to the arch and subsidiary calendar zone to the lower dial. The high quality twin fusee movement of eight day duration, united by five knopped pillars, with the original anchor escapement...
