Description

A lovely oak desk chair dating from the early 20th Century. It is a good comfortable chair and very well made with a thick shaped elm seat. It has a curving back supported by shaped splats with two scrolling arms. It has four splayed legs and swivels on a large bolt. There is a retailer's plaque on the back of the chair for "Popham, Bradford & Co. Complete House Furnishers, Plymouth". It is in very good condition for its age. It has developed a lovely aged patina and is structurally very sound. It is not without a few small marks here and there but nothing detrimental. There are signs of historic worm in one leg which has all been treated as a precaution and haven't affected the chair structurally or aesthetically. The swivel mechanism is in good strong working order with minimal play for a chair of this age. It is approximately 34 1/2" (88cm) high and the arms are 24" (61cm) wide. The seat is approximately 18" (46cm) high and 20" (51cm) deep. The best description comes from the photographs so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask.
