Description

This is a stunning 19th century Gasolier chandelier from the aesthetic period circa 1890. The chandelier is of good scale and quality so is a very elegant light fitting with lovely detail to the brassware. The piece has decorative detail with crown and flower castings that are typical of the aesthetic period. This has its original cast ceiling rose which has a rolling ball design to the upper brass rod. The Gasolier has been fully restored and converted to electricity and has been recently wired and PAT tested so is ready to be professionally installed. It has three attractive white glass uplighter shades in perfect condition. The chandelier is a good size measuring 80 cms in diameter and is 58 cms high with the shades measuring 22 cms in diameter. UK packing and delivery is £25
