Description

Description: A good straight sided 1 quart measure by Henry Fothergill of Bristol, who worked 1819-1845. The measure has a straight sided body with a low fillet, standing on a raised flared foot, giving the measure extra height. The handle is of unusual form with a depressed thumb rest at the upper terminal. The measure has a full set of makers hallmarks and label to the left of the handle, along with a 'Imperial' label. The inside base bears a clear makers mark. Verification marks: The measure has an excellent 'Cornwall County' shield verification, which is the County arms of a shield of 15 bezants. There is also a inspectors mark 'JP', which is either John Parkin of Lostwithiel or Josiah Phillips of Redruth. Provenance: Ex Michael Boorer collection. Bonhams Nov 2012 lot 153. Ex Albert Bartram collection. Published examples: Published as ware number 3530 Pewter Society data base.. Condition: Excellent condition with a lightly polished silver grey finish and some small traces of light oxide. Repairs: There are no repairs that I could detect. Size: Height to rim: 6.250 in (16.00cm). Base diameter: 5.000in (12.80cm). Capacity: 1 quart. Weight: Pewterer's reference...
