Description

This attractive 1920s desk lamp appears to have its original green glass shade still in situ and is in excellent condition. Its metallic surface has been unburnished as it retains an appealing antique patina. Its cleverly designed flexible brass stem makes adjustment easy and the lamp has been rewired sympathetically and safety tested. Originally its decorated brass base would have sat directly on to a surface, however, to offer more protection we have turned a piece of antique mahogany and secured it to the underside of the lamp's base. A disc of old leather has been applied to the polished wooden base as a finishing touch. A lovely period desk lamp. Measurements below are approximate - accurate measurements will be listed shortly. The approximate height and width are the suggested measurements for the lamp when it is in a similar position to how it's pictured in the photographs.
