Description

Original Watercolour attributed to Royal Academy Artist William Collins (1788-1847). Collins was an acclaimed artist and member of the Royal Academy with several exhibits at the Royal Academy. He was a contemporary fellow artist of Constable and Turner whose financial value he at times succeeded. This watercolour sketch possibly depicts a Norfolk Coastal Scene made during his 1815 sketching tour of the Norfolk Coast. There is a very interesting caption on the reverse of the frame: From the collection of Mr. J. Erxleben, who was for 50 years associated with Professor Sir Richard Owen, as his draughtsman and lithographer, and was a lifelong intimate friend of the late Louis Hughe P.R.I. Erxleben was a renown Dutch/German Victorian lithographer and did numerous works as a draughtsman and lithographer for the anatomist and palaeontologist Richard Owen (1804-1892) who was a good friend of Charles Darwin. The frame measures ca 29 cm x 21 cm. Free delivery to all UK and Ireland destinations. Please add an additional £ 15 for deliveries to the EU, USA and Canada.
