Description

A highly decorated sterling silver jug of good proportions, fully hallmarked for John Angell Snr. and George Angell, London, 1844. The firm of Joseph Angell & Son was formed around 1811 by Joseph Angell in Clerkenwell, London and went on to become one of the most important and largest silversmiths and jewellery makers in the mid 19th century. The jug has a highly decorated rim adorned with flowers and leaves and the whole is raised upon four foliate feet. There is some very light wear commensurate with age but generally the piece remains in an excellent condition throughout.
