Description

- These completely matching blue and white serving dishes have moulded raised leaf sprays and painted fruiting grapevine with seaweed tendrils. • These are particularly well painted examples, with a lovely deep blue colour and bright glaze suggesting they had little use in their 260 year existence. • Consistent with little use, the condition is excellent. See Photos. There are none of the common edge nibbles or hair lines. Viewing into the front of each dish there are a few extremely minor losses of glaze on only the high points of the grapevine stems. This may be the result of use or even at the firing stage (or a combination of both). Viewing to the rear there are areas of light kiln dust (not untypical) and a fingernail firing patch of glaze thinning on one and signs of a very good small 5mm shallow rear edge chip repair. • Delivery £50 uk
