Description

French 17th Century Oak Lectern with Revolving Double Sided Top * French 17th Century * Revolving double sided * Steeped in History * Excellent quality made from Oak and is sturdy and solid * In good condition * No major damage * Lovely time worn and aged patina This truly wonderful 17th Century Oak Ecclesiastical Lectern Ambo(1) from France has so very many features to wax lyrical about and is a wonderful example of changes within Church History(2). These are sometimes referred to as a revolving Lectern Ambo(3) or Pigeon Coop Revolving Lectern, although this is a reference to the style of dove cotes rather than any functional purpose. Today it could serve a multitude of purposes in numerous décor styles; for the most stylish restaurant and maître d'hôtel what could be better? For the serious chef it could hold the ultimate menu, for keynote speakers it is a wonderful item to deliver that all important address... and the list could go on and on ... This beautiful historical Lectern Ambo would have been used in a traditional French Roman Catholic community Parish Church in the 17th Century and is steeped in history. It is of excellent quality, sol...
