Description

A lovely example of a 19th Century French armchair upholstered in a good quality grey / blue linen. It is a pretty shape with a generous seat and scrolling arms on turned ebonised legs with the original castors. The chair is very well made and extremely comfortable. It is in good condition and is strong and sturdy. There are a few general marks and small knocks around the legs and an old split on one rear leg (see photo) but nothing detrimental. The upholstery is not brand new, having been covered about 2 years ago, but it has had light use and is in good condition with no major damages or marks. There are a few minor marks here and there but nothing untoward. The chair stands approximately 34" (87cm) high, 29" (74cm) deep and 30" (76cm) wide across the arms. The seat is 22" (56cm) deep and 14 1/4" (36cm) high. The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask.
