Description

This is an antique artist's box. An English, walnut and ebony paint palette case by Winsor & Newton of London, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1890. Appealing Victorian artist's box from a renowned paint supplier. Displaying a desirable time worn patina and remnants of enthusiastic use. Walnut stocks present fine grain interest and rich caramel hues. The lid edge accentuated with an ebonised corner finish. Dressed to the fascia with a brass lined lock escutcheon — in working order, key present. Interior offers a suite of compartments over pin-secured lower drawer. Lift-out paint tray annotated with colour names and several vintage paint pots. Lid interior emblazoned with a gold tooled Winsor & Newton maker's mark. This is a charmingly well-used antique artist's box, with storage for the media and tools required for the enthusiastic travelling painter. Presented within a quality walnut case and in a wonderful 'as used' manner. Solid joints and construction, delivered ready to enjoy.
