Description

A lovely painting of delicate humble cottage flowers (Clematis or Mallow?) which look as fresh as when they were picked and painted, some 125 year ago! The flowers make me think of Manet's painting of "Clematis and Carnations in a Crystal Vase" a composition which has that same striking, elegant simplicity. Our oil on board is French in origin. The work of a woman artist, it is faintly signed "Madeleine F..." , the surname being indistinct. Dating from the 1895-1900 period, it is painted on a quality panel by Dubus, an art supply shop where Vincent Van Gogh occasionally shopped! Celebrated artists such as Gustave Caillebotte and Claude Monet, also patronised the shop between 1877 à 1897. Monet had a student named Madeleine Fleury, and it possible that this painting is a work by her.
