Description

We are delighted to offer this charming antique Victorian 18ct gold enamel star brooch made c.1880. Modest in size yet striking in design, craftsmanship and style, this brooch is unapologetically Victorian with some of the era's most desirable designs in a compact form factor. The 18ct gold mount is intricately made with a wonderful overlapping circular tubed design, almost as if to create a flower/overlapping petal motif. In the centre, a lovely domed section accentuates the overall design with a bright blue enamel star highlighting the central single pearl. Owing to its versatile size, it could be worn on a shirt, jacket lapel or perhaps even on a jumper to add some flair to your overall look. A splendid example of fine Victorian jewellery craftsmanship and a practical piece that is equally delightful to wear practically as is to collect. This brooch certainly would be a unique choice and a distinguished accoutrement for the discerning antique jewellery lover and a conversation starter for the keen-eyed. Pearl is known to be the birthstone for November. The brooch is unmarked as is common with articles of this period, as such, we have tested it with re...
