Description

A fine Regency freestanding dropleaf side table of small proportions in rosewood, the rectangular top with dropping leaves and rounded corners, with crossbanding and boxwood stringing, over two fitted drawers with turned wooden knobs and dummy fronts verso, on square tapering supports raised on brass castors. English circa 1820. Condition: Overall very good, the table is in very good condition and is solid and robust with no undue wobbling, the leaves hang cleanly and the drawers run smoothly, the handles are the originals as are the castors, and overall the table has a lovely colour and patina.
