Description

George V mahogany triple pillar dining table. This George V large mahogany dining table is of an impressive size and can seat 14 plus. The design is the classic Georgian style a design that has graced important homes since they were first designed in 1780 onwards. The dining table stands on 3 pedestals that have gun barrel turned columns with the legs that are line inlaid sweeping off them ending with the cast brass square toes with castors under. The superb top with a burr elm banded border. It consists of the 3 table sections and then 2 leaves that can join the table to make this of a substantial size. A dining table like this can be used with or without its extra leaves and so that gives you a variety of different seating options. Imagine entertaining your family and friends around this magnificent dining table and the pleasure of ownership will give you. Of course, this could be used as an important boardroom table, that will impress clients while also providing a large area to work. 341cms fully extended 134.1/2ins 108cms deep 42.1/2ins 75.5cms high 29.3/4ins 238cms long without leaves 931/2ins All measurements are approximate.
