Description

A Victorian period, small extending dining table, Circa 1870. This attractive solid mahogany dining table of small proportions features a top which extends from a small square to a 6 seater rectangular table. The top is constructed from solid, beautifully figured, mahogany and finished with thumb moulded lipped edge, and rounded corners. It extends by way of telescopic bearer stretchers, "Joseph Fitter, Patent" screw-winding mechanism, complete with original winding handle, and a single additional leaf. There is a plain frieze with lower lipped edge. All raised on ring-turned reeded legs on brass cup castors. A petite and elegant table, ideal for small spaces, with the multi-functionality of extending to a bonafide 6 seater table. Rare to find one of these so small. In good condition, presents very well, serviced, cleaned and waxed, ready for use. Dimensions: This table measures approximately 73.5 cm (29") tall, 157.5 cm (62") long extended, 107 cm (42.25") long unextended, and 104.25 cm (41") wide. The additional leaf measures 49 cm (19.25"). Condition: Please see the pictures for details of the items condition. - This table is in good condition, commensurate wit...
