Description

A George III mahogany batchelor's chest of small proportions, the rectangular top with moulded edge over a baize lined brushing slide and four oak lined long graduated drawers with cockbeaded edges, the brass swan neck handles with pierced backplates and brass key excutcheons, raised on plain bracket feet. The chest is a very useful size and would make a good bedside chest. The brass handles appear to be replacements, although are period to the chest and have been there for a considerable time.
