Description

This early 20th-century oil painting by Danish artist Gustav Vermehren (1863-1931) depicts an older couple conversing on a countryside track. Amid an ever-advancing web of emerging technologies, grimy industry, and societal challenges, Gustav Vermehren painted the world he wanted. Where rural communities flourished in self-sustained equilibrium, where modest families upheld traditional values, and where everyday conversations were given ample time to develop. His Denmark was an escape that he returned to time and time again. Painting elderly couples reading in hushed cottages and tired old gents nodding off wearily by their favourite window. Here, in this charming piece from around 1910, the light is exquisitely handled. Note the gentle glow emanating from between the trees. And the golden reflections in the uppermost puddles. Signed in the lower right and held within a gilt frame.
