Description

The Sheraton Revival Mahogany Bonheur du Jour is a beautiful piece of furniture. Bonheur du Jour is a French term that translates to "daytime delight" or "daytime happiness." It refers to a small writing desk or dressing table that was popular during the late 18th and early 19th centuries. The Sheraton Revival style is a furniture style that emerged in the late 19th century, inspired by the designs of English furniture maker Thomas Sheraton from the late 18th century. It aimed to revive and recreate the elegant and refined furniture designs of the Sheraton period. This Bonheur du Jour features tapered legs with spade feet. Tapered legs are legs that gradually become narrower towards the bottom, providing an elegant and sophisticated look. Spade feet refer to feet that are shaped like spades, adding a decorative element to the piece. The piece also includes two drawers that are lined with mahogany. Mahogany is a hardwood known for its durability and rich, reddish-brown color. The use of mahogany lining in the drawers adds a touch of luxury and craftsmanship. Furthermore, the drawers retain their original brass handles. Brass handles were commonly used in antique furnit...
