These French bronze candlesticks, dating back to around 1860, form a small pair and exhibit exquisite craftsmanship and are a testament to the artistry of their era. They are meticulously fashioned from bronze which lends them durability and a timeless appeal. The bronze surface may exhibit a touch of verdigris, a natural patina that develops over time, adding character to their antique allure. Their design features a classic columnar form and they are elaborately decorated and feature intricate patterns and motifs of acanthus leaves and standing on lion's paw feet. Their timeless elegance makes them a captivating addition to any space. Whether placed on a mantelpiece, dining table, or sideboard, they evoke a sense of history and sophistication. Each piece tells a unique story, and these candlesticks, with their fine details, are no exception.
