Description

Celebratory 'God Save the King' Flag of historical significance * English 1930s * Original Flag * "God Save The King" * Later Frame for protection against damage * W: 99cm (39") H: 85cm (33.5") D: 3cm (1.2") This flag is of historical significance as there were three Monarchs during the period of 1936-1937; George V who died in 1936, Edward VIII who abdicated, never having had his Coronation and subsequently George VI who was the father of the late Queen Elizabeth II. This historic celebratory banner reads, "God Save The King" in bold white and split red and blue letters, set against a red, white, and blue striped field. This English-produced banner was printed sometime in the mid 1930s which could well have been used to celebrate the coronation of King George VI in 1937 – or used even earlier for celebrations for his father George V. Banners such as this were proudly waved by British citizens to celebrate the Coronation of a new monarch or other significant celebratory occasions. There is some wear and creasing visible from past display and possibly minimal soiling present from age, but otherwise there is no notable damage to the piece. The ban...
