It really is a remarkably impressive conservatory or garden jardinière of fabulous scale and combines artistry, history, and functionality making it a captivating addition to any space. This exquisite jardinière hails from Arras, a town in France. The Arras garden furniture style emerged around 1840 when one of the metalworking companies in the town of Arras, Grassin-Baledans began specializing in creating artistic ironwork for garden furniture and other ironwork for gardens. The Arras pieces are entirely hand-forged and riveted, crafted with metal tubing and flat metal. These were intended for the high-end market, catering to the privileged classes who were embracing out...
