Description

A 20th Century Lead Warwick Urn. The original now resides at the Burrel Collection in Glasgow. The vase dates to the second century CE and was found submerged at the bottom of a lake at Hadriens Villa. The artists Piranesi made a number of drawings of the vase and it was purchased by George Greville, second earl of Warwick. Since then there have been many copies of this vase made over the past centuries in many different sizes and materials. Circa 1910-1920.
