Description

A rare and magnificent dining Sofreh (flatweave) made by the Timuri - Sangtschuli tribe on the border area of north-east Persia and north-western Afghanistan around the mid 19th century. This is a museum piece that I've brought out of my personal collection to pass on to a passionate collector who appreciates such amazing flatweaves. The sofreh, which is complete with beautiful brocaded skirts, incorporates a small tree design throughout the central field with highlights of silk and metal thread. For its age, this sofreh is in amazing condition. Size: 1.52m x 0.91m (5' x 3') approx. TBC
