Description

We are delighted to offer this magnificent vintage citrine and seed pearl brooch/pendant. Striking and unforgettable upon first glance, this pin brooch/pendant presents itself with an array of spectacular features. The honey-coloured citrine is faceted and cut almost in the form of an endearing heart shape and features a five-point crown/coronet (usually an Earl) on top. The coronet has been intricately and charmingly embellished with five seed pearls along the band and points, completing the overall look and aesthetics of this piece. The gold mount, citrine and white pearls present a wonderful regal and majestic tone all together and are truly delightful upon wearing under sunlight. The reverse side features a pin so that it can be used as a brooch with blouses, jackets or coats. Additionally, as there is some space to place a chain through the top section, it may also be worn as an equally endearing pendant necklace. This piece is unmarked and thus we have tested the gold mounts, indicating 14ct solid gold. A wonderfully designed piece of jewellery ideal for those looking to add a hint of gold and opulent flair to their collection. A perfect gift for so...
