Description

We are delighted to offer this splendid antique Victorian ruby and seed pearl navette ring made c.1900 (the shoulder/ring may have been re-shanked at a later period). The top section of the ring features a wonderful navette design with a single ruby embedded within 14 seed pearls which creates a lovely contrast of colours and brings the eye to the centre. The 'shoulders' of this ring are equally delightful and full of character with a tapered 'step' design all set in 14ct rose gold that blends in wonderfully with the wearer's skin tone. Overall, a wonderful piece of fine Victorian jewellery whether it be a special gift or a personal addition. The ring's aesthetics and presence certainly makes for a statement piece upon wearing and is a lovely way to express your passion for fine design and antiques. The ring is unmarked as is common with gold articles of the period and as such, we have fully tested it for 14ct solid gold. Ruby is known to be the birthstone for July and pearls, June. All of our rings come with a complimentary modern hard shell ring gift box with a velvet interior. Size & Total Weight UK Size: M US Size: 6 1/4 3.37g /0.108 troy oz Condi...
