The early oak chest, which is of practical proportions, comprises a two-plank oak top, decorated with the original chip-edge carvings and is secured by the original iron strap hinges and hand-made iron nails. The oak bible box retains what we believe is the original iron striking plate, which incorporates a restored internal working lock and key. The lid is secured by an iron hinged hasp, which allows the box to be locked. The outer box is decorated with simple applied moulding...
