Description

Antique oak pot board dresser base Here we are delighted to offer you this George III oak pot board dresser base. It is fitted 3 drawers under the top and a small candle/spice drawers to each side of the arched frieze and a dummy drawer to the centre between the arches. Under the drawers are the finely turned front legs that join to the wonderful elm pot board, to the top corners of the legs there are highly attractive pierced frets, this adds to the dresser base some extra refinement. The fretted corner brackets are taken from Thomas Chippendales influence, that in time would have found its way to the country cabinetmakers, who would have wanted to be up to the current fashion. London fashion often took years to make its way into the country. Antique dresser bases are so versatile as they look fantastic in so many places around the home. Imagine this lovely dresser in your home and the pleasure it will give you, as well as how useful it is. 178cms long 70ins 43cms deep 17ins 88cms high 34 1/2ins All measurements are as accurate as possible.
