Description

A good example of an early Victorian Solid Silver tea caddy spoon with a distinctive large shovel shaped spoon and short handle. The spoon is good quality, weighing approximately 25g and measuring approximately 5 1/2" (14cm) long. It is clearly hallmarked for London, 1841 and the makers Charles Boyton. It is in good condition for its age. There are no major damages and it displays well. There are some faint surface scratches and a few light marks and dinks here and there but nothing detrimental. It has been gently cleaned and polished and is ready for use. Approximate Measurements: Length : 5 1/2" / 14cm Bowl : 3 x 4.5 cm The best description comes from the photos so please look at them all carefully and if you have any questions just ask.
